The

City of WEST HOLLYWOOD

Dear Conference Attendees,

We are pleased to welcome you to the 7th Annual West Hollywood Women's Leadership Conference: Knowledge. Power. Community. This year, our goal is to expand leadership opportunities for women in West Hollywood during a time when issues of women's equality have come to the forefront of our national discussion.

Leadership is a personal and professional quality that is an essential ingredient to success. The mission of the 2013 Women's Leadership Conference is to provide tools and support, inspired by the City's Core Values, for women to be successful leaders in their private lives, in business and in the community.

The conference has been a great success in previous years, very informative and a lot of fun for everyone who participated. We hope this year's workshops, speakers, and break-out sessions are as inspiring, thoughtful and impactful to you as they have been in the past. We are very excited for the national leaders, educators, and advocates we have brought to West Hollywood to share ideas and help move our community forward together.

Leadership is an important skill for both our professional and personal lives and is something that each of us can develop. Attending the City's Women's Leadership Conference is an excellent start!

Dear Mayor Prang, Councilmembers and Friends:

On behalf of the entire Board of Supervisors, I'm pleased to offer my greetings to everyone in attendance for this year's 7th Annual West Hollywood Women's Leadership Conference. This year's theme – Unlimited Opportunities: Knowledge, Power, Community – exemplifies the conference mission of giving women the means and the motivation to become successful leaders in their personal and public lives.

Beginning with an opening event featuring Geena Davis and a special screening of the Oscar-nominated "Invisible War," this promises to be a stimulating and memorable weekend for attendees. My congratulations to the conference organizers and planners for putting everything together, and my best to all participants for another rewarding and inspiring experience.

Sincerely,

ZEV YAROSLAVSKY

West Hollywood Women's Leadership Conference
8300 Santa Monica Blvd
West Hollywood, CA 90069

Dear Friends:

It is my honor to welcome you to the City of West Hollywood's 7th Annual Women's Leadership Conference, "Unlimited Opportunities: Knowledge. Power. Community."

This Leadership Conference supports and encourages women to embrace the challenges of today's world. We are currently at a watershed moment for women in our country; unless we are vigilant, the hard fought gains in gender equality might very well be rolled back. By empowering women to take on the mantle of leadership, we not only strengthen those women, but our community as a whole.

I would like to thank the City of West Hollywood for its vision and dedication. It is my hope that this generation of leaders inspires the next to be prepared for whatever challenges might lie ahead.

Best wishes to all in attendance today!

Sincerely,

ADAM B. SCHIFF

His dissertation uses intersectionality and social formation theories to investigate how social location affects Black, Muslim, and gay/queer men's gender justice groups.

Leadership Under Fire – Keynote Leadership Luncheon

Sandra Fluke

Attorney and Social Justice Advocate

Sandra Kay Fluke is a Georgetown Law School graduate and women's rights activist. In February 2012 she came to attention in the United States when Republicans refused to allow her to testify to the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee on the importance of requiring insurance plans to cover birth control during a discussion on whether insurance should have a contraception mandate. She later spoke to only House Democratic members. Fluke has supported President Barack Obama's re-election campaign, and was a featured speaker at the 2012 Democratic National Convention. She co-founded the New York Statewide Coalition for Fair Access to Family Court which successfully advocated for legislation granting access to civil orders of protection for unmarried victims of domestic violence, including LGBTQ victims and teens. She is the 2011 recipient of the Women Lawyers of Los Angeles' Fran Kandel Public Interest Grant, which supported her production of a video on how to take out a restraining order. She also represented numerous victims of domestic violence and human trafficking and also worked to help child victims of domestic human trafficking in Kenya. Sandra Fluke graduated cum laude from Georgetown University Law Center in 2012 and served as president of Georgetown Law Students for Reproductive Justice.

Patti Giggans

Executive Director, Peace Over Violence

Patricia Giggans has been the Executive Director of Peace Over Violence since 1985. Peace Over Violence, founded in 1971 deals with the issues of violence against women, youth and children focusing not only on crisis intervention but primary prevention and social change through community activism. Chanchanit Martorell

Executive Director, Thai Community Development Center

On February 8, 2012, Chanchanit Martorell received a letter from Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra of Thailand informing her that she had been selected to receive a Royal Decoration for her sacrifices and years of service to the Thai community abroad. Engaged in social activism for the past 20 years, Martorell is currently the Executive Director of the Thai Community Development Center, a non-profit organization she founded in 1994 in an effort to improve the lives of Thai immigrants through services that promote cultural adjustment and economic self-sufficiency. During Thailand's military coup of 1992, she mobilized the Thai community in Southern California to protest the atrocities committed by the military junta against civilian demonstrators in Bangkok. She is known most notably for her work on several major human rights cases involving over 400 Thai victims of human trafficking who were discovered working in conditions of slavery in the United States. Dedicated to social and economic justice, she actively serves in a variety of capacities in a number of community/immigrant/labor rights organizations with local, national and global concerns, including the California Community Foundation Council on Immigrant Integration, Center for Human Rights and Constitutional Law, the Labor Community Services Program, and the Mayor's Office of Immigrant Affairs. On September 28, 2005, she was confirmed by the Los Angeles City Council as Commissioner for the Central Area Planning Commission upon being appointed by Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa and is currently serving her second term as Vice Chair.

Abbe Land

Moderator, Mayor of West Hollywood

A resident of West Hollywood since 1979, Mayor Abbe Land has played an instrumental role in West Hollywood since its inception, where she was part of the successful campaign to make West Hollywood an independent city in 1984. Councilmember Land was appointed to the City's first Planning Commission in 1985. In 1986, when a council seat was vacated mid-term, she was elected to the City Council for her first term. She served with distinction as a Councilmember and Mayor until 1997, when she did not seek another term. In 2003, Mayor Land returned to public service when she was once again elected to the City Council, and was re-elected in 2007 and in 2011. She has served four previous terms as Mayor of West Hollywood (1989-90, 1994-95, 2005-2006, 2009-2010). In addition to her service as an elected official, Mayor Land serves as the executive director and chief executive officer of The Trevor Project, the nation's leading provider of crisis intervention and suicide prevention services to lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and questioning youth. She previously served as the co-chief executive officer of The Saban Free Clinic -- formerly known as the Los Angeles Free Clinic -- a leading safety-net provider in the Los Angeles area, providing free medical and dental care, counseling, HIV testing, health education, prenatal care and wellness programs for thousands of uninsured men, women and children. Widely known for her leadership on women's issues, LGBT rights and civil liberties, Land was instrumental in creating the City's Women's and Disability Advisory Boards, and led a delegation to the 2004 March for Women's Lives in Washington, DC. She currently serves on the board of Women Against Gun Violence, the California Community Clinic Association of Los Angeles County, and the L.A. County Department of Health Services' Women's Health Policy Council.
